Raised by wolves

- Noah was raised in a hyper-masculine, almost Q-style world.
- Full of conspiracy. Full of a weird religion of his father.
- Willing to do anything for his father not to leave him. For people, in general, not to leave him. He is totally driven by his need to be accepted by Thane.
- This drives a huge desire to be perfect in Noah. He believes that if he does everything perfectly, the ones he cares about will never leave.
- And yet, no matter how perfect he is, he still feels that at any moment he could not be perfect enough.

Longing for salvation

- Noah longs for salvation in a broken world.
- When he is shocked into beauty by Christ and his numbing response no longer works, he feels the cracks in his life.
- But, like Valjean, Noah must get low enough to be able to see Christ. He must fail.

The reader must deeply hope for his salvation. <-- the entire key to the book. ENTIRE KEY.

If I can make the reader hope for Noah's salvation, I can make them hope for their own.

Character Arc deep dive (WIP)

Theme	Our hearts are restless until they rest in you.
Anti-theme	Enough success can satisfy any desire.
Noah's Arc	To fail enough in order to choose to meet Christ
Final reader experience	Putting down the novel, reading the final pages, the reader has had an encounter with Christ. Not just an emotional experience, they've felt something they've never felt before, a calling, a longing. Their soul is stirred.
	Description	Function	Appears
Wound	A deep hurt that is the source of the character's negative worldview	Justification of the LIE and provides resonance to the THEME and reinforces the ANTI-THEME	Pre-story	Noah's mother abandoned him when he was a little boy. Think of the boy brought into the dark woods and left alone. As a result, Noah's been raised by wolves. Weak men who are terrified of the world. Who only seek to conquer. Who have no connection to God. To grace. Noah's mother abandoning him was akin to the feminine, to god abandoning him. I can make this connection in the narrative.
Lie	Limiting belief keeping the character from the RADICAL TRUTH . Reinforces the SURFACE WANT and STORY GOAL.	A result of the WOUND. Reinforce ANTI-THEME, SURFACE WANT, and STORY GOAL. Also ties into negative trait of enneagram	Pre-story	He is worthless without accomplishing his mission.

Deepest fear	The known or unknown terrible fear the character carries with them.	Provides fuel for the lie	Pre-story and first plot point	That deep down inside, there is nothing to him, he has nothing inside. That this is all there is. He will always feel this way.
Unique trait	Radically unique key trait - provides an "x factor" to the character.	Emblematic of the WOUND and hints of the THEME	Ordinary world	Maybe, being a Thane Guard, he is taught philosophy of the mind and, as a result, he is highly well read. Maybe in this it is that his philosophy has given him a really really sharp, but entirely wrong, view of man. Almost a counterpoint to the gospel using lots of quotes from philosophy. Write a counterpoint to the gospel. Something occultly and entirely human. I mean that would be cool and allow me to have him quote philosophy. He could carry around something - could even be one of Cormac's philosophies (I could write that). • Yes, they read people quickly. Threes tend to be excellent at perceiving what others want, what will impress, what's trending, what persona will win. • But the depth of that reading can be shallow or strategic—not necessarily motivated by a desire to understand others for their own sake, but to succeed in a given environment.

Limiting belief	A strongly held yet incorrect driving belief that controls and propels the character	The packaged result of the WOUND, LIE, and DEEPEST FEAR	Ordinary world	He believes that there is no reason to life outside of what he can achieve. He has completely abandoned his physical life to Thane. He considers himself dead. He needs to keep himself numb through success until he dies. You are here for a while, you have some luxuries, and then you die.
Thorn	A visceral, felt reminder that no matter how hard the character tries, the SURFACE WANT will never heal the wound.	Shows the LIMITING BELIEF	Ordinary world	A gnawing emptiness. Every time he accomplishes a major milestone, he is left with more emptiness and more helplessness. He might also hear his father's voice, pushing him. At first, he doesn't recognize it as destructive. He thinks it is largely correct until much, much later.
Coping tool	The main tool the character uses to blunt the pain of the THORN	Counteracts (though not entirely) the THORN	Ordinary world	Numbing - Noah must do everything he can he "enjoy" life. He is adept at numbing, at thinking he will be happy with the next accomplishment. Also, potentially ignoring. He just suppresses it down.

Whisper of Grace	The small, mighty voice of God calling the character to grace. Capital-T Truth. Almost imperceptible in daily life. Something humanizing and lovable. The goodness provides the necessary amount of suffering to change.	Hints at the THEME and demonstrates the CORE WANT while denouncing the LIE. Acting on the SURFACE WANT pushes on the THORN. Drives the character into the ABYSS seeking relief.	Ordinary world	From the earliest scene, Noah longs for hope. He desperately wants there to be more of the world. If he is every quiet enough, he feels the pull of God. Noah is also naturally a good man. He has a good heart that is unrooted in Grace.
Surface want	Known. Doing Today. Producing internal pain but external comfort.	Reinforce the LIE	Ordinary world & antagonist	To become a Thane Barron. A propertied class that owns a share of Grain and the bounty. Noah has already been made a Guard for his work. He wants to be elevated, but no one has ever been elevated.
Soul's longing	Wildly compelling. Opposite & radically different from surface want. Exists on the periphery of the character and while it is felt, it is not understood. Must also directly enable the CAPITAL-T TRUTH	Hints at the THEME	Pre-story & Ordinary world	To be satisfied by Jesus Christ. He wants his life to have meaning, but he does not realize the cost. "Those who lose their life will save it." He wants his life to mean something. He wants to become something. To matter. "I have this... hole," Noah says, his fist patting his chest three times. "I've always had it. When I'm quiet it screams at me. I've just always wanted to be something." This does not seem specific enough.

Bitter need	Something the character must learn or do. The cost of accomplishing the CORE WANT, often at the expense of the STORY GOAL.	The entire tension point of the narrative, integrated with the DILEMMA plot point.	Pre-story & ordinary world	Noah needs to get low enough to meet Jesus Christ. His arc is one of salvation. He must break and choose hope. They honestly confront their own inner emptiness and longing for love. They renounce the security won by status, money, and power. They renounce building their own kingdom because they hope for the coming of God's kingdom. /
Capital-T Truth	The awareness the character needs to step in the SOUL's LONGING.	Proving the THEME and completing the CHARACTER ARC	Climax	What does Maya teach him? There is no satisfaction outside of Jesus Christ. I can say this confidently and with full authority. I know this to be true. I can make this statement out into the world and back it up with my own emotion.
Ordinary World	A safe cocoon where the character does not notice	Masks the LIE and promotes the SURFACE WANT Also reinforces the ANTI-THEME	Ordinary world	Noah's entire life is Thane. Everything reinforces this kind of hyper success. Thane's philosophy easily reinforces his lie and his surface want. It is simple for him to keep going. In fact, he is on the up and up.
Story	Description	Function	Appears	Story

Hook	An propulsive, unexpected start to the narrative.	Shows the THORN and the WHISPER OF GRACE	Hook
Call to adventure		Introduces the STORY GOAL	Build up	He wants him to kill Daniel Diaz. To get behind enemy lines and report back what he sees. Noah does not know that this is a huge deal. Cormac is taking a giant risk. But, Cormac offers Noah a Barony.
Story goal established	The initial goal of the character in the story.	Satisfy the SURFACE WANT	Ordinary world	To kill Daniel Diaz. Cormac makes a sinister remark, "Kill him and I'll make you a Baron. The first."
Awakening	The first moment of internal challenge. First awareness that the lie could be false	Challenges the LIE and opens door to CORE WANT	Inciting incident	Private (https://app.clickup.com/t/8621651/AA-1342) Noah meets the priest who shows him beauty so extreme that it knocks him off of his center. It is a haunting experience where Noah realizes something is not right. The beauty is so extreme that it knocks him off of his center. It is Jesus healing the man at the well. Sitting with the Samaritan woman. This beauty needs to be shattering. The absolute love of Christ needs to pierce his heart.

				"I don't need your God." The Priest, standing, places his hand on Noah's shoulder. "Yes... yes you do. You speak of God as if he isn't real. But, he spoke to me as soon as I saw you." "And what did your God say?" "
First blow	When the antagonist slaps back.	Shows that the CORE WANT and STORY GOAL are going to be difficult	Build up	The PA attacks the Palatina while he is with Kate. He needs to defend her, nearly to the death. He realizes then that the PA are a serious organization with the resources and will to do incredible violence. But, there is something inside of him that does not feel satisfied with the violence. The numbing is not enough. The accolades not enough. The beauty seen in the awakening is shattering. Noah also has a moment where he does not want to die for Thane (standing in contrast to the hook).
Crossing the threshold	A moment of no-return when the character's changes. Either intentionally or unintentionally taken by the character.	Exposes the CORE WANT and denounces the LIE. Also pushes on the WOUND.	First plot point	Noah finds the family and then later he goes back to their apartment. With the awakening now taking root, Noah is left to ask (like Jean Valjean), "what have I done?" He feels his shame. Not just for his family, but for all the violence he's committed. He deeply feels his abyss, he feels how it goes all the way down to his soul. He visits the Priest and asks if he has seen Maya.

Clawing to stay in lie	Frantic yet unsatisfying action for the character to stay in the LIE	Propels character to deciding to learn the RADICAL TRUTH	First half of second plot point	He throws himself into his mission that much more. He is obsessed with accomplishing his mission in the hopes of burying his core want, but he cannot stay in the lie. Private (https://app.clickup.com/t/8621651/AA-1336)
Radical Truth	Propelling reality that will unlock your character. Refutes the lie. The focus of character arc.	Result of the AWAKENING. Introduce the THEME while hinting at the DECISION and directly challenging LIE	Midpoint	Noah goes to meet with the mother. He wants to confess, but he cannot get it out. "What have you done? Why are you here?" she asks. "I'm a bad man." "There are no bad men. No one gets off the hook that easy. There are bad choices, that you control. But, there are also good choices. There is redemption."
Abyss			Second Half of second plot point	The mother calls him to rescue Maya at the expense of his mission. He visits the Priest.
Bucket work transformation	Unknown growth needed for your	Truth learned in the ABYSS.	Third Act	Hmm... This would need to be his softening.

	character to achieve their CORE WANT and satisfy the THEME	Making progress towards the CORE WANT and proving the THEME		"Your value comes from God. You can't do enough to be valuable to God."
Decision	Impossible choice between two equally	Fulfills the THEME by achieving the CORE WANT by sacrificing SURFACE WANT	Climax	Whether he will save Maya or redeem his career by killing Daniel Diaz. Noah chooses his sister and he rescues her at the end of the novel. Noah decides that he isn't leaving Maya.
Catharsis	Result of the DECISION	Proves the THEME	Black moment	While Noah escapes with Maya, she is killed with a dart, sending him into a total tailspin. He brings her body back and the Priest, and the Priest makes him
New world	Result of the BLACK MOMENT	Fully resolves the character arc and story	Denouement	Noah is wounded, but he has his belief in God. He has hope.

Scratchpad

10.4.2025 - Noah and his father

Private (<https://app.clickup.com/t/8621651/AA-3071>)

- There has been a decent narrative gap in that I have no way of connecting to Noah's childhood without flashbacks.
- I also would have basically 2/3 of the parents dead if Noah's father is dead (including both dads). I don't think that is the kind of message I want to indirectly send. Maya's dad being dead but a huge titan of a man is one thing.

Impact if I keep him

Good

Bad

1. I could use him to give Noah a lot more depth. He could call him at certain points and it would really build out Noah's backstory.

a. There would also be an intimacy there.

2. I think it could serve to show Noah is a little boy who needs to grow up.
1. I think the risk is always complexity. I'm always nervous about that.

a. Noah would have:

i. Father

ii. Priest

iii. Cormac

If I keep him, what would be his role?

1. I think he could give Noah a ton of narrative depth
2. He would have to represent another kind of failure.

I say we try it for a moment. Give it a shot on the first scene.

10.2.2025 - Noah's arc of failures

Noah's arc is a series of consecutive failures until he finally gets low enough to see God. And, when he gets this low, that is when he finds Maya (how?).

Functionally, how did I fail?

1. Professionally
2. My marriage was a disaster

Failures for Noah

1. He could fail to capture Diaz in Brooklyn

a. Attack on the Palatina

b. Intelligence not coming through

c. Could try to stop the Battle of Brooklyn Bridge

2. Could have lost Grace

3. Could go to confront his mother only to be destroyed by it

 For this to work, he can't be there 2 weeks
Right? "You see, things are late. You are our only hope"

Plot point	Striving	Failure
Noah capturing Miguel	Noah believes if he only captures Miguel, he will finally be accepted and feels something.	Cormac dangles a carrot in front of him. It isn't enough. He is almost kicked out.

First moments in Brooklyn	He desperately needs a lead. He is trying to get information on Daniel Diaz.	He gets nothing. Cormac is putting pressure on him. He is unable to even make inroads. Cormac gives
Attack on the Palatina	He got no new	Noah didn't see it coming. He gave no forewarning.
Finding his family		This disrupts his sense of self. He is suddenly back on the stump.
Battle of Brooklyn Bridge		• He's getting no closer. • He is completely taken off guard.
Visiting his mother		He blames his mother for his string of failures. And maybe for his entire life. He feels as if he is boiling over.
Killing Diaz		• He kills Diaz, but he feels nothing.
